The City Multan

Multan, the city of saints, has been a center of learning, culture and civilization for centuries. It is one of the oldest living cities of the world. Its original name as described by Hiuen Tsang, a Chinese traveller, who visited the city in October 641 A.D., was 'Mu-lo-san-pu-lu', which is believed to be a translation of 'Mulasthana-Pura'. Al-Beruni, who came to South Asia in 1015 A.D. alongwith his Master Sultan Mahmud Ghaznavi, writes about the town as 'Mulatana'. He visited Multan the same year and recorded that Multan was originally called 'Kasyapapura, then Hansapura, then Bhagapura, then Sambapura and then Mulasthana. Sir Gen. Alexander Cunningham, after conducting excavations in the old fort in 1853 A.D. and 1864 A.D., further adds to these names those of 'Prahlapapura and Adysthana'. The first recorded event in the history is the invasion of Alexander the Great in February 325 B.C.

Several other important historians visited Multan including Masudi (915 A.D.), Istakhri (951 A.D.) and Ibn Batuta (1334 A.D.) and they all wrote about the social, cultural and educational activities in Multan. Multan's importance has always been acknowledged and it has always maintained its distinguished and honorable position among the cities of this region.

The city (740 ft. above sea level) is located almost in the center of Pakistan. It is at a distance of approximately 950 km from Karachi and 630 km from Islamabad, right on the main highway and about six kilometers from the mighty Chenab, in a bend created by the five confluent rivers. The vast plain of Multan Division is dissected by rivers, canals and narrow water channels, forming an ideal agricultural base for the economic development of the region.

The University

Multan has always remained a centre of excellence in education. Hazrat Bahauddin Zakariya (1172 - 1262 A.D.), a Muslim religious scholar and saint, established a school of higher learning in theology in Multan; where scholars from all over the world came for studies and research. Multan has maintained its central position and centuries old cultural heritage and therefore suited ideally to become a center for learning. Thus the University of Multan was established in 1975 by an Act of the Punjab Legislative Assembly. To pay homage to the Great Saint, the name was changed from University of Multan to Bahauddin Zakariya University in 1979.

The University is located at a distance of 10 km from the city center. The main Campus is spread over 960 acres of land. The University has a fleet of 22 buses and 2 coaches which provides transport facilities to students and staff. The University started functioning in 1975 in rented buildings with 8 departments. Presently, it has more than 30 departments/institutes/colleges. Out of its 392 faculty members, 130 hold doctoral degrees and among its around 10,000 students, half are female.

The University offers a wide range of programs: M.A., M.Sc., MBA, M.Com., MCS, M.Phil, and Ph.D. Additionally, in recent years, the University has taken a lead in introducing 4-Year Undergraduate programs in Science, Commerce, Business, Pharmacy, Engineering, and English Literature and Linguistics. Various short-time courses and diplomas offered from time to time have become popular amongst the general public.

The University is widely known as a renowned institution for excellent performance and great ambitions and credentials it has continued to make speedy progress toward its goals. It plays a significant role in developing indigenous human resources through its highly productive achievements, both in Sciences and Humanities.

The University has made tremendous progress through different phases, but some recent developments are remarkable. To promote the activities of art and culture, Multan College of Arts was established in 2003. In order to cater to the needs of textile industry, being a major one of the area, the University College of Textile Engineering was established in 2004. The University has also established two sub-campuses at Sahiwal and D.G. Khan to provide education facilities at the doorsteps of the people as part of the policy of the Government. Steps have been taken to establish the University's linkages with the community and Industry. There has been significant enhancement in students' enrollment. To ensure quality in academics and research, Quality Enhancement Cell has been established. A large number of buildings are under construction. These buildings will provide better facilities to the students. The University has implemented semester system in almost all the departments and organizing international conferences and seminars has been a routine academic activity. A significant number of faculty members have been awarded post-doc research fellowships. The establishment of the Department of Siraiki, Institute of Biotechnology and Faculty of Veterinary Sciences are some recent developments.

Introduction and Rationale of Distance Education.

In Pakistan, a large number of students appear in various examinations, as external/private candidates. Such students have no access to formal teaching and learning opportunities due to many constraints. They largely depend on get through guides and other similar kind of low quality material available in the market. Consequently, their knowledge remains substandard and their skills are incompatible with the needs of the market. This is the reason that compelled the worthy Vice Chancellor (Prof. Dr. Muhammad Zafarullah) of the university, to take the initiative to raise the standards of private students, training and education. Therefore Directorate of Distance Education launched MA programme in five disciplines in August 2009 and is successfully in progress..

Initially, the system was introduced in certain Humanities and Social Sciences disciplines at the Post-graduate level including English, Economics, Pakistan Studies, Islamic Studies and Urdu and will continue in future i.e. 2010 and onwards. On the success of existing programme the system will be extended to other disciplines and later to all over the country and to the Middle East countries.

The degrees, diplomas and certificates obtained through this system will be fully accredited and accepted everywhere as other degrees and certificates of Bahauddin Zakariya University. The facilities for providing teaching materials and guidance and other required and relevant services will be made available by Bahauddin Zakariya University through an effective and efficient rework of these services. An informal system including some structured, some semi-structured and some unstructured components will provide opportunities for learning with a flexible scheduling.

This year (2010) Distance Education students shall be admitted at the start of academic session i.e. August 2010 like regular students. No admission after the cut off date will be permitted. The project will be completed in 24 months time period. The students will be prepared year wise M.A. part I (1st year) and M.A. part II (2nd year).
